The Sackler family built one of the most powerful pharmaceutical empires in history — and one of the deadliest.
Through Purdue Pharma and their “miracle drug” OxyContin, they fueled an addiction crisis that killed hundreds of thousands of Americans.

Behind every museum wing and university donation was a darker truth: their fortune came from pain, addiction, and death.
This is the story of how doctors, marketers, and billionaires turned suffering into profit — and how justice never truly came.

🧠 From The Dark Library — true crime stories about money, power, and betrayal.
